Never mind the big flashy machines, says Ian Boughton, what are suppliers doing to help operators who serve coffee in small quantities?

Just one espresso?

[...] There are some unusual, and possible unique, features in the Unic machine, which already has some business in Britain, and which has reappeared here under the distribution of Unic UK. "It has an ingenious portafilter for pods," says Unic marketing director Tony Farnesi. "If you are only using pods, you can just half-unclip the portafilter from the machine and it will automatically eject the used pod."

GOOD PRACTICE

Unusually, the Unic has a Teflon-coated steam arm. This recognises that while it is good practice to wipe clean the arm after each use in frothing milk, some inexperienced staff do forget.
